FOOD SERVICE

Improper hand washing is the biggest source of cross contamination in food service environments. An outbreak of food – borne illness can endanger your customers and employees, shut down your operation, affect the health of your community and expose your business to costly legal liability.

Proper hand hygiene can remove salmonella, e- coli, listeria and other food- borne pathogens from your operations, significantly reducing the threat of serious illness.

STOKO offers a full line of hand cleaners and sanitizers for the food service industry.

Our food handler products provide your preparation areas with the same high level of protection as federally inspected food processing facilities. The proper use of anti bacterial soaps and hand sanitizers help prevent the spread of disease. And our innovative, economical light duty hand cleaners provide the perfect solution for your public restrooms. Protect your employees, customers and business with food service solutions from STOKO Skin Care.
